SECRETARY KNOX ON THE AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY

Free From Selfish Ends, Always Promoting Freedom of the People.

In the Orient and Western Hemisphere.

FOR COURT OF ARBITRATION.

Philadelphia, June 15.—Knox sounded the keynote of American diplomacy under the present administration in his speech today at the commencement of the University of Pennsylvania.

Since American statecraft had its beginning in an effort to secure recognition for a young nation struggling to relieve itself from what it considered to be intolerable oppression, it is but natural that its earliest diplomatists should have been actuated and guided by broad principles of international right, justice, and equality, as well as by large and fundamental considerations of humanity. Representing a small and weak belligerent nation, beset with difficulties of discipline, organization, equipment, men, and finance, and realizing in the fullest measure, as they did, how near they were to losing, because of these deficiencies, their own struggle for what, in their opinion, was a just and righteous cause, it is not strange that these men should have later sought for some method of adjusting their international difficulties other than by the lawless uncertainty of war. Therefore, in negotiating the treaty of 1794 John Jay, finding it impossible at the moment definitely to adjust with Great Britain certain boundary disputes along our frontier, as well as other differences affecting the citizens of the two countries, preferred to provide that such disputes should be settled by arbitration rather than to leave them as open questions capable, at any time, of irritating the two governments into renewed conflict; and it must ever be said to the credit of the government and the negotiators of the mother country that realizing, as they must have realized, the great advantage which they might with reason hope to obtain through an armed settlement of these questions, they still were not unwilling to join with the United States in negotiating a treaty which provided for the settlement of these disputes by peaceful means. By this treaty the two governments entered in "the modern era of arbitration."

From this date, 1794, until the present time, the government of the United States has uniformly and constantly exhausted every resource in order amicably and peaceably to adjust its international difficulties, and during this time it has, including those now pending, taken part in some seventy arbitrations.

It should, moreover, in connection with this matter, be observed that convinced as it has been that arbitration should be essentially a judicial rather than a diplomatic matter and that the award of an arbitral court should be not a compromise but a judgment founded upon principles of law and equity, this government has time and again upon due and appropriate occasion submitted to international tribunals questions of international law. It is in accordance with this principle that the United States and Venezuela have recently negotiated a protocol of arbitration providing for the submission to The Hague of the question of the revision of an international award.

It was pursuant to this same principle that, in the case of Pelletier against Haiti, the government of the United States, upon the protest of the government of Haiti, and as the result of an investigation of the facts and circumstances surrounding the case, itself declined to enforce and set aside the award made by the arbitrator, in favor of the American claimant.

It was this same spirit and understanding of international arbitration that led the government of the United States, upon charges of grave irregularity, to join with Venezuela in a revision of the awards made by the United States and Venezuela commission of 1866, and which also prompted action of the United States

Never Since Dewey's Victorious Fleet Steamed Into New York Bay Has City Seen So Great Crowds

Thousands Flocking to the Metropolis to Join in Welcome to Roosevelt—Had to Call Off Parade.

Via Wireless, London, June 15.—Every one of Roosevelt's fellow-passengers had a chance to see and hear him. Roosevelt completed the round of the ship today. He visited the stokehold and grasped the grimy hands of stokers and chatted with them. After a visit below he held a formal reception on the deck.

His visit to the stokehold was one of the most interesting events of the trip. The stokers did their best to show their appreciation of the honor. As one laid down his shovel, Roosevelt grabbed it up and put several shovels of coal over the glowing fires. They cheered him heartily.

Crowd's Fill New York.

New York, June 15.—Strangers are filling up New York. Not since Dewey sailed into New York harbor with his victorious fleet has the city experienced such a rush. Big delegations from every state are pouring in to welcome Roosevelt. The general parade feature is abandoned, because if all organizations turned out in solid formation it would take more than a day for Roosevelt to review the. Rough riders and Spanish veterans will act as his personal escort.

Child is Recovering.

Lawrence, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams, of Twenty-third and Clark streets, who was attacked and badly scratched over the head and face by the family cat last Friday night, is rapidly recovering and there is no danger of blood poisoning setting in.

She will be confined several days.

FARM DWELLING BLAZE
CALLS OUT DEPARTMENT

Fire burned the roof off a house belonging to Mrs. Kate Craig this morning about 11 o'clock. The house is located on a farm on the Mayfield road about three miles from the city, and caught from a defective flue. Workmen succeeded in extinguishing the fire before the entire dwelling was burned. The news of the fire was telephoned to Mrs. Craig, who thought that the hotel was on fire, and she telephoned for the fire department. Horse companies Nos. 1 and 3, and truck company No. 4, made the run to Fifth and Jefferson, but there was no fire there.

Lee Browne Claims Conspiracy Victim

Chicago, June 15.—The defense of Lee O'Neill Browne is that he is the victim of a gigantic political plot, of which Representative White is the tool. Senator Lorimer probably will take the stand. The defense has indicated it today when the cross-examination of White was resumed.

Attorney Forrest asked White why he picked out the Tribune to sell the story to. He was asked if it wasn't because the Tribune was hostile to

MARS FAILS IN FLIGHT
FROM TOPEKA TO K. C.

Topeka, Kas., June 15.—J. C. Mars, driving a Curtiss bi-plane, the "Skylark," left Topeka at 5:10 today in his flight to Kansas City. After flying 19 minutes he landed at a farmhouse to get a fresh start. After passing Newman, 14 miles east of here, he descended a second time on account of motor trouble.

The engines were working badly, but he resumed his flight. Mars landed again at Midland, near Lawrence at 8:30. He covered the distance from Newman to Midland in 24 minutes. Landing at Midland, he struck the ground hard, and stopped for repairs. Kansas City is 61 miles from Topeka.

Mars is held at Midland indefinitely by high wind and engine trouble. Probably he will have to abandon his flight. If he completes the flight he wins a $5,000 prize.

"IRISH" M'LOY IS MUSSEL FISHING IN UPPER OHIO

Friend and Companion Says He Was Not Pool Road Victim.

Missing Ferryboatman Wires He is a Alive.

MYSTERY REMAINS UNSOLVED.

Tom or "Irish" McLoyle was not the victim of the Pool road murder and is alive and fishing mussel shells above Cincinnati, O., according to Sam Hook, a ship carpenter at the Paducah marine ways, who was a personal friend of McLoyle.

"Irish" left here about the middle of March," said Hook today, "and said he was going to Cincinnati. He went to the mines at Caseyville and worked several days and returned here. A short time later he and Frank Boatwright left for Cincinnati. Frank came home not long ago and said 'Irish' was fishing for mussel shells above Cincinnati and was coming back here this summer."

Hook says that McLoyle came here from Ireland and the description of the murdered boy did not fit "Irish" at all. He said McLoyle was only about 5 feet 4 inches in height and had dark brown hair, which he parted in the middle. He said McLoyle's face was red but not freckled as was the dead boy.

Hook did not see the dead boy, but says he knows that it is not "Irish." McLoyle stayed with Hook at his home near Tenth and Husbands streets from Christmas day, 1909, until March, when he left here with Boatwright. The letter saw McLoyle alive above Cincinnati after the murder here was committed and said he was living in a shantyboat. According to Hook, McLoyle was not a jockey but was a race horse "rubber." Tony Newman, who knew McLoyle well, said that he saw the dead boy and it was not McLoyle. Others who knew "Irish" are of the same opinion. Both Guy Dean and Tommy Farrin were acquainted with McLoyle and both saw the dead boy, say it was not McLoyle. McLoyle is expected to return here this summer.

John Mainschein, the auburn-haired ferryman, who appeared from Paducah April 9, the day the Pool road murder was committed, is alive at Evansville. The Evening Sun traced him last evening and this morning received the following telegram from Mainschein himself:

"Evansville, Ind., June 15.—I run gasoline ferry at Paducah from March 26 to April 9.

"JOHN MAINSCHEIN."

Another Clew.

Another clew is being worked now that may lead to the identity of the murdered boy found on the Pool road as a leather worker from St. Louis and a former Paducahan. Ever since the murder Mr. A. D. Buchanan, proprietor of a restaurant at 217 Kentucky avenue, has maintained that the murdered boy was the lad that ate at his restaurant for three days early in April.

According to Mr. Buchanan he remembers the lad distinctly because of his freckled face, and says that the corpse resembled the lad from St. Louis. One day the boy began a conversation with Mr. Buchanan, and said that he was employed as a leather worker in St. Louis, but they had gone out on a strike and he had jumped over to Paducah to have another look at the old town. He ate at the restaurant for three days and never appeared after April 9.

The boy never gave his name to Mr. Buchanan, but appeared to know the proprietor of the restaurant. Clerks in the restaurant also remember the dead boy and they feel positive that he is the same lad. Another fact that may show the lad to have been a leather worker is that his finger nails were black and oily.

Dean Employs Lawyer.

William Dean has employed Attorney David Browning as attorney to represent his son, Guy Dean, now in the county jail, being implicated by the confession of Tom Ferrin. Mr. Browning was attorney for Hale and Guire, who were in jail nearly a month on the charge of the murder.

Sante Fe President Says He Thinks Government Will Own Railroads of the United States in Five Years

Rate Regulation is Step in Direction and Next One Will be Forced as Economic Necessity.

Chicago, June 15.—E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe, in an interview today with the United Press predicted that within five years the United States government would own every line of railway within the domain. He believes the government will take the step as an economic necessity. He said the rate regulation bill now being considered at Washington is a step, which presages this final result. He declined to estimate the cost.

The Rate Bill.

Washington, June 15.—Although returns regarding the conference report on the railroad bill are favorable, after a conference, the regular leaders today decided it is best to defer action in order to allow time to familiarize the report. HENRY GOCKEL PUTS OUT
FIRE AT CANDY FACTORY.

Serious damage to the Stutz candy factory, Fourth and Jefferson streets last night was prevented by the fact that Mr. Henry Gockel, a well known baker, who lives near the building on North Fourth street, caught sight of the blaze just before retiring. About 10:15 o'clock he noticed a light at the rear of the building at the trash pile and upon investigation found a fire had broken out. Assuming the role of fireman, he dashed several buckets of water on it and succeeded in extinguishing it before there was any damage. The origin is unknown.

Kraft at New Albany, Ind., has written chief of Police Singery in an attempt to locate the grandmother of 15-year-old Eula Webb, who is in the care of a family in that city. The child was taken from a shantyboat there two years ago and claims her grandparents are a resident of Paducah. Chief Singery has been unable to locate her, but is still investigating.

TAFT AT MARIETTA AND PARKERSBURG

SECRETARY OF WAR SPEAKS

MENCEMENT.

Dickinson at West Point.

West Point, N. Y., June 15.—In his address to the graduates of West Point today, Secretary of War Dickinson held up Roosevelt as one of the presidents whom the fortunes of war boosted into the white house. He said eight presidents' reputations in war were potential in raising them to the presidency.

Dickinson said: "Where will you find in history any people with such a record as has been shown by our military men, who held the chief magistracy?"

Concluding, he said the system of military education in this country is unsurpassed anywhere in the world.

BELIEVE HUSBAND GUILTY OF CRIME

CHARLTON'S TRUNK MISSING
AND HE ASKED ABOUT STEAMBOATS.

Como, Italy, June 15.—Police today are convinced that Charlton, the husband, murdered Mary Scott Carlton, and sailed for New York. They notified vessels by wireless to watch. This is in direct opposition to United States Ambassador Leisham, who still is convinced that Charlton is slain. The discovery that Charlton's trunk is missing, they claim, strengthens the evidence of murder. The positive statements of the postmistress at Moltrasio, that Charlton asked regarding the sailing time of vessels and of a carpenter who said Charlton asked how deep the water was, convince the police that Charlton left the country.

Hope of finding a solution of the mystery in Constantine Lepoitoff, the Russian suspect, has been practically abandoned. Probably he will be released within a few days.

Queen Would Be Regent.

London, June 15.—Queen Mary has been chosen as regent, in the event of George's death before the coming of age of the Duke of Cornwall instead of the Duke of Connaught, the late king's brother. The selection caused surprise. It is believed to be due to George's determination to make Connaught governor general of Canada.

REELFOOT AND "DR. M."
IN SOME FAST "TRY-OUTS"

Reelfoot would have made a mile in 1:56 had he kept up his merry gait at the West End fair ground yesterday afternoon. The last half was made in 1:05. He took the last quarter in 30 1/2 seconds and the last eighth in 14 1/2 seconds. Dr. M. was given a try out also and was accompanied by a runner. He paced a mile in 2:11 1/4 and was not pushed. The first half was made in 1:07 and the second in 1:04 1/4. A big crowd was out and there is much speculation as to which horse will win the track record July 1, the day set for the match race between the two. Both paces will be worked out again Friday afternoon, as Tuesdays and Fridays are adopted as the working days. Both show excellent form.

ACCUSES FRIEND OF SHOOTING HIM DURING QUARREL

Will Taylor Says Ed Wood Put Bullet in His Right Optic.

Wood Held on Warrant and Case Continued.

HE INSISTS HE IS INNOCENT.

After working on the case for two days Patrolmen H. H. Doyle and Walter England gained a confession from Will Taylor at Riverside hospital yesterday afternoon. Taylor was seriously wounded Sunday night. He accuses Ed Wood, a pal of his of the shooting and said it occurred near Thirty-ninth and Clark streets.

Wood was placed under arrest at 9 o'clock this morning on a warrant sworn out by Patrolman Doyle, charging him with malicious shooting and wounding with intent to kill. Wood gave bond and was released.

Taylor, who was brought to Dr. B. L. Bradley's office immediately after the shooting Sunday night by Wood and was operated on at Riverside hospital. Wood was arrested an hour later on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and held as a suspect. Patrolmen Doyle and England began working on the shooting immediately and yesterday afternoon at Taylor's ward at the hospital he talked for the first time. Taylor claims he and Wood had been riding Sunday and that night were near Tom Allen's residence, just outside the city limits on the west side, when Taylor says he got out of the buggy and, immediately, Wood stepped from the buggy and shot him, saying: "You—I'm going to kill you."

The ball entered just over the right eye, tearing out the ball and lodging in the upper jaw.

Taylor claims they came to town after that. When Wood was asked about the affair today he protested his innocence and said he knew nothing about it, except that Taylor got shot and he brought him to town. The case was called in police court this morning and continued until next Tuesday morning in order that Taylor might be on hand. He is improving and will recover. The charge of breach of ordinance against Wood was continued to the same day.

If Wood is guilty the police think there is more behind the affair, which led up to the shooting.

By just one score the batting rally of the Indians yesterday afternoon in the ninth inning failed to tie the score and the Vincennes team drilled off the field the winners by a score of 2 to 1. It was a hard game to lose, but Vincennes a trifle outplayed the Indians, who lacked ginger, and decidedly outpitched Paducah. However, Guinn twirled a splendid game, while Gosnell, the left-handed artist, pitched a swell line of ball.

The game started off with Vincennes adding two scores, and in the ninth the Indians came to bat with the score 2 to 0 in favor of the visitors. By a streak of luck runners got on the sack and Manager Cooper was shoved over when Johnston muffed a long fly off Overton's bat. With Crain on third base and two strikes on Guinn, Crain started for the home pan. The tall pitcher made a dive for the pan, but the sphere was too quick, and Catcher Johnson slapped the ball on his back before he ploved to the plate. It was a close decision, but Crain was too late by a few seconds.

For six innings the batters on both teams went down in one, two three order. In the first inning it looked like Vincennes might score but a fast double play ended the danger. In the first Dehaven walked and Stanley sacrificed him to second. Jantzen walked. Hurst drove the horsehide to Ware, who handed it to Williams and he threw it to Cooper for a fast double play.

In the eighth inning Williams was at the bat for Paducah, and as he swung his bat at the ball it struck him on the left hand, mashing off a finger nail. Tidwell took his place at second base. It will mean that the little infielder will be off duty for several weeks.

It looked good for Paducah to score in the fifth, but Gosnell settled down and there was nothing doing in the scoring line. Block went out Dehaven to Nairn. Crain walked. Overton soaked a fly to left and Jones muffed it. Cox tried hard but hit a bouncer to Dehaven and was out at first, while Crain traveled to third. Guinn struck at three bad ones and the inning was over.

Vincennes opened up for business in the sixth. Stanley went out on a grounder to Cooper. Jantzen was safe on a fumble of a bouncer by Cox, who permitted the sphere to go under his arm. Hurst was given a free ticket. Nairn smacked the ball for his third hit of the day and Jantzen came home. Jones ended further danger by hitting a hot drive to Cooper.

In the eighth the Alices made another tally. Jantzen hit to left and pilfered second base. Hurst hit a high one to center, which Angermeier failed to scoop up with one hand after a long hard run. Block threw wild to third to catch Jantzen, who scored as the ball was lost in the bleachers.

In the ninth the Indians made a grand attempt to overcome the lead. Gosnell became nervous, and it looked good for a victory, while the fans whooped and hollered. Cooper was first up and was soaked in the ribs. Block hit a high one to center garden and was out. Crain was given transportation and Cooper was advanced to second. Payne flew out to Dehaven. Overton hit a long fly to right field, which L. Johnson dropped and Cooper crossed the pan. Guinn was at the bat when Crain made a desperate effort to score on the squeeze play, but was nabbed at the plate.

Doyce Carroll, who was with Paducah, has signed up with Harrisburg, Ill., in the Southern Illinois league, and is playing center garden. Carroll did good stick work at the opening of the season, but his batting dropped.

Lee Hart is playing with Caruthersville, Mo., in the Arkansas league. Hart is filling the out gardens and pitching in cases of emergency.

Today was ladies' day at the ball park, and the closing game between the Alices and the Indians was well attended, especially by the fair sex. The game was called at 3 o'clock in order that the Vincennes team could catch the 6:20 o'clock train for Vincennes, where the team will play Hopkinsville tomorrow. Manager Nairn announced that either Bailey or Johnson would work, while Manager Cooper will choose between Crain, Payne and Lockhart.

Tomorrow Clarksville will arrive for a series of four games.

No Chance for Six Teams.

From the outlook last night there will be no K. I. T. league baseball team in this city this season. A telephone message from Morganfield stated that the ball lovers of Morganfield thought the undertaking too big for them. As soon as this was ascertained a telegram was sent to President there was of getting Cairo. He telephoned in reply that he had been trying to locate Guy Elchenburger, who has always promoted baseball in Cairo, but he was not in the city and there was no chance to get any one to take hold of the matter.—Henderson Gleaner.

Like the "Umps."

The game was umpired by Mr. Connie Smith, of Louisville, a new man in Clarksville. His work was entirely satisfactory. He is capable and strictly attentive to every detail of the game, evidently desirous of being entirely fair and just to both sides. His decisions are rendered promptly and distinctly. He is said to be the sort of umpire who will not stand for any foolishness whatever, being strictly business.—Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle.

in the La Abra and Well cases, in which this government, having become convinced that fraud had been practiced by the American claimants in an arbitration with the government of Mexico, relieved Mexico from paying such part of the award as it had not already paid, returned to Mexico the sums paid upon the award and undistributed to the claimants, and in addition, appropriated by congressional act a sum to repay Mexico the amount which had been paid and distributed to the claimants and which was, therefore, beyond the reach of the United States.

Not only did American and British diplomacy, by the treaty of 1794, usher in "the modern era of arbitration" as to specific subjects covered by special arbitration agreements, but in 1897, the foreign offices of the two governments have reached the conclusion that certainly as between England and the United States there were no question of any kind whatsoever which might not be and which ought not to be settled by international arbitration.

International Cases.
Not only has the United States sought thus to settle its own difficulties by the implements of peace rather than by those of war, but it has assiduously exerted all proper pressure to induce the world to adopt the principle of arbitration as a means of settlement of international disputes.

It is of more than passing interest to note that in referring the Pious Fund case to this international tribunal for determination the United States and Mexico were the first of the signatory powers to invoke the jurisdiction of this newly constituted tribunal; and it is unnecessary to add that the award in this case has been scrupulously observed by Mexico, against whom it was made.

The efforts of the American delegation at the second Hague conference resulted in the re-adoption in an extended and amended form of the convention for the Pacific settlement of international disputes, as well as the framing and adoption of a convention for an international court of prize. But the conference also recommended to the nations of the world the establishment of a court of arbitration.

It is confidently expected that the initiative of the United States will lead to the early establishment at The Hague of a permanent court of arbitration.

In the Orient.

From the very commencement of our intercourse with China, American diplomacy in that empire has been marked by a just regard for the rights of China as a sovereign power and has consistently aimed to promote the interests of the Chinese people no less than those of our own.

The first treaty entered into by the United States with China was negotiated by Caleb Cushing, and signed at Peking in 1844. In it the spirit and purpose of American diplomacy are admirably illustrated by the article which provides that American citizens who shall trade in opium shall be subject to be dealt with by the Chinese government without being entitled to any countenance or protection from that of the United States.

Notwithstanding that China was compelled by treaties with certain powers in 1858 to legalize the traffic, the United States again in 1880 agreed that Americans should not be permitted in any way to engage in this trade, and that they should not be allowed to plead the favored-nation clause of the treaty in their defense.

Still more effective, however, was the action of this government in 1906, in proposing to the powers having territorial possessions in the far east the appointment of a commission to study the opium problem and propose measures for its solution.

The first appointment of diplomatic officers to represent China at the capitals of the world was due to a suggestion made by the American minister at Peking, Anson Burlingame, who, with the consent of our government, resigned his post in 1867 that he might accept the invitation of China to head a mission to 11 of the great powers, intended to bring about a better understanding

There are various important provisions in our commercial treaty of 1903 which evidence our interest in the promotion of reforms which must result in benefit to the Chinese people. Among these are the engagements entered into by China to establish a uniform currency, to adopt reasonable mining regulations, to revise the penal code, and to establish a system of modern courts. The United States, on its part, has promised to lend its assistance to these reforms, and has given assurance that when the courts and laws of China warrant it, the United States will consent to the abolition of extraterritoriality.

The provision respecting a uniform currency has not yet been fulfilled, but immediately after the ratification of the treaty the American government sent a special commissioner to China to give expert assistance in devising a practicable scheme for the establishment of such a currency.

Many other instances might be given in illustration of the altruistic spirit in American diplomatic relations with China, none of which, however, has excited more favorable comment than the return in 1885 of a balance of $453,400 left in the treasury of the United States after payment of claims growing out of the Chinese resistance to British military operations around Canton. In the fifties, and more recently, the act of Congress authorizing the return to China of the balance of the Boxer indemnity, which will amount to some $11,000,000.

With Japan.

The history of modern Japan began with the landing of Commodore Perry in 1853, when, overcoming the obstacles that had baffled every previous effort, he succeeded in opening that country to foreign intercourse. His achievement was justly hailed, both in Europe and America, as a great triumph of peaceful diplomacy.

Nowhere is this fact better understood or more readily acknowledged than in Japan itself. Nine years ago a stone tablet was unveiled at Kurihama, Japan, in commemoration of the landing of Perry on that spot forty-eight years before. The tablet was erected by funds subscribed by the Japanese court and people, and the inscription was written by Japan's leading statesman—one of the foremost statesmen of the world—the late Prince Ito. In the course of the ceremony, the presiding officer said: "This monument is erected to preserve on stone our determination never to forget the friendship of the United States that sent Commodore Perry to us in a peaceful way to open up intercourse with foreign powers." It has been truly said that "such an occasion and such a tribute are without a parallel in the history of nations."

Commodore Perry was followed by Townsend Harris, whose patient and unselfish efforts in laying the foundations of diplomatic intercourse with Japan are too little appreciated, even by his own countrymen; for while "the genius of Perry unbarred the gate of the Island empire and left it ajar, it was the skill of Harris that threw it open to the commercial enterprise of the world." A man of distinguished ability and striking moral character, he is held in grateful remembrance by the Japanese people of today.

The modern progress of Japan, which began with the arrival of Commodore Perry, has been influenced and assisted at every stage by the disinterested friendship of the United States. Japan's earliest attempts at a reorganized government were based upon the American model, and American ideals shaped her educational and financial institutions. American advisers assisted in the development of agriculture, a postal system, and foreign intercourse. America, alone of the foreign powers, returned the indemnity exacted after the attack upon foreign vessels at Shimoda in 1868. It was America that took the lead in recognizing Japan's inherent right to complete autonomy in matters of tariff and jurisdiction, and as early as 1878 advocated a revision of the ancient treaties to accomplish that result. In 1886, an extradition treaty was negotiated between the two countries, on a reciprocal basis, largely, as stated by President Cleveland at the time, "because of the support which its conclusion would give to Japan in her efforts towards judicial autonomy and complete sovereignty." The treaties that are in effect today, signed in 1894, were framed on the lines that had for years previously been advocated by the United States.

The educational and medical institutions in Turkey which have been established by the American missions and which have been productive of so much good have received at all times all proper support from this government.

The world-famed Robert College, at Constantinople, has done much to spread western enlightenment and progress throughout that region. Many statesmen of note have there received the principles of western civilization.

American institutions in Turkey have done a great work—a work which has also favorably affected the peaceful extension of American commerce.

In Africa.

For some years past the conditions in the Congo have engaged the earnest attention of a large class of our philanthropic citizens. The attitude of the United States has been one of benevolent encouragement, in the hope that the promised reforms would in their actual operation meet the high demands of public sentiment. With the accession of King Albert, who, as well as his Minister of the Colonies, has recently personally visited the Congo and studied conditions there, encouragement is felt for an effective policy of practical reform. I am happy to say that the recent promulgation of decrees to facilitate free trade, revise the rubber tax, and ameliorate other burdensome conditions are a further augury of the accomplishment of an end which we, together with the rest of the civilized world, ardently desire to see attained in that vast region peopled by our less fortunate fellow-men.

Liberia.

An excellent example of the disinterestedness and fairness which characterize American diplomacy is afforded in the traditional attitude which the United States has assumed toward Liberia. This little negro republic on the west coast of equatorial Africa was founded in 1822, under the auspices of the American Colonization society, with the aid and assistance of the United States government. The motives underlying the movement which resulted in the founding of Liberia were: The hope of the abolition of slavery and colonization of the free negroes, the providing of a refuge for negroes captured on slave traders, and of a home for American negroes, and the desire to civilize and Christianize Africa through the instrumentality of such colonization.

Perhaps the most significant indication of the continued interest of the United States in Liberia was the sending of a commission to that country last year under authority of Congress, to inquire into conditions there and report recommendations to the department of state.

Western Hemisphere.

I now turn to what is by far the most active sphere of American diplomacy, namely, that of our relations with the twenty other republics are passing through an evolution similar to our own—that of the peopling and developing of vast areas and the attempt to perfect republican government under similar institutions.

From the time the United States became an independent nation this government, while respecting its obligations to European powers, has frankly and consistently wrought for the establishment and maintenance of a popular, free, and independent form of government for the countries which share with us this hemisphere. Just emerged from our own war of independence, the struggle of the southern republics awoke a responsive chord in the heart of the American people, and in 1823 this government hastened to recognize as sovereign states the republics of Spanish South America, and named ministers to represent it at their capitals.

Turning to modern examples, by the Spanish-American treaty signed at Paris in 1898 and its accompanying documents this government, to the surprise of the world, spontaneously, and by action for which history scarcely affords a precedent, recognized the independence of Cuba.

While the greater American republics have long since acquired an industrial and governmental credit comparable to that of the oldest nations, the treasuries of some of the most backward republics have at times virtually succumbed under the weight of exorbitant foreign loans, which, with improvident financial administration, have sunk them deep in debt. The problem of good government is inextricably interwoven with that of economic prosperity and sound finance; financial stability contributes perhaps more than any other one factor to political stability.

The republic of Honduras is typical as a country laboring under the disadvantages referred to. It has a heavy bonded debt, held in Europe, for which it has in its national wealth no proportional return. The interest fell in arrears and it became absolutely necessary that the debt be re-fund and the finances placed upon a sound basis. At this juncture a group of American bankers came forward prepared to offer terms more advantageous to Honduras than those offered on behalf of the actual creditors. Believing that a strong Honduras would tend enormously toward a stable and prosperous Central America, this government is heartily supporting the plan for its financial rehabilitation. If the arrangement made proves, upon the closest scrutiny, to be just and equitable, then this government will be prepared, with the consent of the senate if a treaty is desirable, to give it such sanction as shall afford the bankers legitimate security for their investment by recognition of such relation as the government of Honduras may create between the payments due the lender and a proper portion of the customs revenues.

As illustrating the manner in which it is hoped that American diplomacy may thus benefit Honduras and Central America, it is a pleasure to refer to the signal success of the Santo Domingo arrangement. The political history of Santo Domingo from the foundation of the republic in 1844 until 1905, the year of the modus vivendi, which was followed by the convention of February 8, 1907, may be likened to a kaleidoscope of revolution interrupted only by despotism. Through these chaotic years foreign bondholders of three or four different nationalities had by various arrangements mortgages upon the revenues of as many different ports as security for loans, sometimes usurious and always squandered. The situation had become from every point of view impossible, and Santo Domingo turned to the United States for assistance. After the consideration of various plans the before-mentioned modus vivendi and convention were hit upon as a satisfactory solution. As a result of the good offices of this government the great majority of the creditors, relying upon the guarantee to be afforded by the financial stability brought about through the convention, accepted a settlement whereby outstanding obligations to the face value of some thirty or forty million dollars were funded for about seventeen million dollars. Thus the assistance of the United States has enabled the republic of Santo Domingo to reduce by half the face value of its debt, to furnish unquestioned security, and to have a customs administration so efficient that, after caring for the liquidation of a relatively enormous debt, it has supplied ample funds for all governmental purposes, the surplus for such purposes being actually greater in amount than the total revenues which entered the Dominican treasury prior to the present customs administration. On its political side it has freed Santo Domingo from apprehension of intervention on the part of creditor nations, and has contributed immensely to domestic tranquility and prosperity, unaccompanied by violent repression, to a degree never before known in the republic.

The Santo Domingo plan was vigorously opposed in and out of Congress by those who regarded it as a deviation from our policy of aloofness from participation in the internal affairs of other countries. I suppose it was a departure, but if this government can help to uphold its neighbors and promote the thought that the capital of the more advanced nations of the world would be better employed in assisting the peaceful development of those more backward than in financing wars (it is such a deviation from traditions as the American people will approve).

The spirit of good neighborhood and of mutual helpfulness, consideration, and confidence has always made possible to our diplomacy the settlement with a minimum of friction of the great variety of questions which geographical proximity has from time to time raised between us and our Canadian kinsmen. In the same spirit we are soon to negotiate with them for a tariff arrangement of greater mutuality and more consistent with our common interests of neighborhood. With the republics to the south of us, commerce, which makes so powerfully for friendship, is flourishing under conditions very favorable to their great export products, and which it is hoped may in time be adjusted in some cases upon a more reciprocal basis. The investment of our surplus capital and the exportation of our products not absorbed by the home market, like the foreign enterprises of our citizens, which increase with the slackening of the domestic demand for their activities, should vitalize our commerce with the other American republics.

Panama Canal.

The completion of the Panama canal will be seen within a few years as the culmination of four centuries of aspiration. That the government of the United States, when private enterprise had failed, itself undertook the burden and responsibility of this great work is a good indication of the importance this government attaches to the advancement of Pan-American relations. The United States has always taken a sympathetic and practical interest in the advancement of the Pan-American railroad. It would be most desirable to see as much as possible of the great highway, which it is necessary to build to connect the Americas, built by the co-operation of the enterprise of the countries through which it passes, and by convention, dedicated solely to the uses of commerce upon reasonable and equal terms. The cause of American peace would be greatly advanced if its use were forbidden for military purposes in the event of internal war in any country or in the event of war between countries through which it passes.

Through the historic demonstration of the candor and singleness of purpose of this government's diplomacy, and through its quiet application to the task of doing and of seeking equity and justice, these relations, I believe, stand today upon a foundation firmer as they become more intimate; and the fact that the spirit of neighborly helpfulness is common to governments of other American republics and to our own is shown increasingly year by year.

To mention only one or two of many examples to illustrate this fact, one may recall the settlement of the acute boundary trouble between Peru and Ecuador, the reference of the ancient Panama-Costa Rican boundary dispute to arbitration through the good offices of the United States, and, quite recently, the tripartite offer of mediation, by which the Argentine Republic, the United States of Brazil, and the United States of America, acting in the most harmonious accord, cast the influence of three great American republics on the side of peace in an effort to avert pending war between Peru and Ecuador, an action by which the three governments have given to this hemisphere the honor of first invoking the most far-reaching provisions of The Hague convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

News of Theatres

At the Star.

An excellent program was presented at the Star theater last night to big houses and the whole bill was enthusiastically received by the Star patrons. The Roosevelt pictures were instructive as well as highly entertaining.

Cosmopolitan opened the vaudeville bill with a very neat athletic act and was well received. Scott and Davis give a very high class song and dance act, which is far above the ordinary song and dance act and was heavily encored. Stanley and Weaver have a shadow graph act, which brings forth the laughter and although it is apparently designed to appeal to the children, it was quite noticeable that the old children enjoyed the act quite as much as the little ones.

Frank Long scored with a beautiful illustrated song.

This program will be given Wednesday. A complete change of program goes on Thursday afternoon.

Prof. Monaghan's Lecture.

It should be understood that, while invitations have been issued by the Knights of Columbus to hear Professor Monaghan's lecture at the Casino, Wallace park, on the evening of Thursday, June 16, the public generally will be welcome and the lecture will be free.

The lecture will be given tomorrow (Thursday) evening at Wallace park by James C. Monaghan, of New York. The subject will be "The Flag, America and Opportunity." Mr. Monaghan is well known as an educator and orator and is delivering a series of lectures throughout the country. Everywhere he has been received by large audiences. He has held high places on the faculty boards of Wisconsin and Notre Dame universities and has been prominently identified with the consular service. In 1908 he was the recipient of the Lactare Medal from Notre Dame.

Mr. Monaghan spoke to an audience of 4,000 people recently in Illinois, and much enthusiasm was aroused by his address. An eminent critic speaks of him as follows: "It is hard to tell accurately wherein lies the power of Mr. Monaghan over his audiences. It is not so much in the words he utters, though they are always distinguished by force, scholarship and literary flavor. I have heard him several times, always with the greatest pleasure and profit to myself; always satisfied that he has spoken the true and timely and earnest word in the true and sincere and felicitous way; and always puzzled as to how exactly to account for the spell which he weaves over an audience. There is only one word to describe it and that is genius. But it is more than genius. It is the power of the man who knows."

No charge for admission will be made and the public generally, especially citizens who are interested in educational, industrial, commercial and civic questions, are invited to hear him.

You are not going to overlook your city taxes and pay the penalty are you? Better go at once and see after this; the time is growing short.

Charge Fraud Through Mail. New Orleans, La., June 15. — Gerald C. Evans, alias O. C. Bailey, charged with having used the mails to carry on a mail order fraud in this city, by advertising 12 quarts of standard brand whiskey for $5, was returned to New Orleans Monday morning by United States Marshal J. H. Anderson, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and C. H. Horsley, who acted as guard. He was arraigned before Commissioner Chas. M. Monday and held under a bond of $2,500. The warrant for his arrest alleges that he secured $5 from J. B. Davidson, of Hamilton, Miss., by false representations.

Have you paid your city taxes yet? The penalty goes on soon, you know, and you might overlook this matter. It would be best to look after this today.

MAGNA CHARTA.

Six hundred and ninety-five years ago the Magna Charter was extorted at Runnymede from King John by the barons of England. These feudal tenants of a tyrant king for the first time in history called in question the divine right of a monarch and enforced at the sword's point a recognition of the individual rights of subjects. Such particular constitutional guarantees as they secured referred to feudal tenure, a relation obsolete in our day, and bear little resemblance to our theories, predicated on the doctrine that "All men are created equal," but it made the first breach in the divinity that hedges about a throne, and its memory is sacred for that reason.

PREVENTING EVIL.

How an editorial on a big social question is accepted is always interesting, and many points of view are gained, when "one airs his opinion" to the public. Yesterday The Evening Sun dared to speak plainly on a social condition, that is menacing the very foundations of our civilization—racial virility. Complacently good citizens, who attend their devotional duties regularly and let it go at that, clapped their hands in glee, and accepted the editorial as a reflection on the police, when really it was meant as a reflection on them, instead of the police. We wonder that the police can keep any sort of order, with public sentiment dormant, as it is.

Others, of course, thought it a reflection on the town and best let alone. They are in the same class with those who would not placard houses, containing smallpox, for fear the news would get abroad that there is smallpox in the town. Such could be expected to perfume their bodies in preference to bathing.

The real fight against the social evil is just like the real fight against tuberculosis: the social evil and tuberculosis have both existed in our midst all our lives; therefore we have concluded they are necessary evils. For five years the medical fraternity of the United States has been fighting for the prevention of tuberculosis and only now is any appreciable response to their efforts being manifested by the public. When we become accustomed to the prevention of both the social and physical disease, we shall realize that we have taken another step upward from barbarism.

RED HAIR AND THE WUNDER-LUST.

Color of the hair has always been identified with the disposition, but has it anything to do with the homing instinct and wanderlust? Have red headed boys a propensity for getting themselves lost?

This question seems worthy of serious consideration, in view of the developments following the discovery of the mysterious murder on the Pool road of some youth, whose familiar appellation by popular consent must be "Red" among his intimates. We never knew so many red headed boys to be lost, strayed or stolen at one time, and the publicity given their names, we are happy to report, has resulted in more than one fatted calf being killed. The Evening Sun modestly admits its humble instrumentality in restoring numerous red headed boys to the bosoms of their families. Some day The Evening Sun will be host to all the red heads it has forced home in self-defense, and then the people of Paducah will be able to appreciate in some measure the part a great daily newspaper plays in the private affairs of individuals in a community.

Reckless tongues have added to the dramatic possibilities of these disappearances, and whenever a red headed boy strays from home, the circumstances appear so peculiar, that his associates are at once shown up in a suspicious light. Only yesterday by careful editing was the reputation of the companion of one red headed youth saved from suspicion; for "Reddy" left April 9, the day of the Pool road murder, without warning, leaving all his belongings at his boarding house, and his dear friend sloped in the same way the very day the two suspects of the "Red" Thompson theory were released from custody.

It is odd how many boys of the "strawberry blonde type of beauty" dropped out of sight on or about April 9. Leaving out of consideration the incident of the Pool road murder, of course, it is but natural that the wanderlust should seize a lad, be he blonde or brunette, when the mounting sun first starts the sap to leaf and bud. This accounts for it satisfactorily when "Red" finds his way back home.

They were not all killed. By the process of elimination possibly, by and by, we shall learn the real name of the unknown victim. When all the wandering red heads are checked up, and one is left—he will be the victim.

Governor Haskell should be granted a change of venue, if the government has to select a jury from the vicinity of Guthrie.

DIRTY STORY TELLER TO THE PUBLIC.

When our attention is called to the fact that the church and holy things are sometimes commercialized by designing men, it encourages us to think that they have discovered the innate piety of the nation; but when a man commercializes vice and exploits the indecent and blasphemous, frankly and unblushingly for lucre, we tremble lest the mind of the reading public is depraved.

Elbert Hubbard furnishes the brightest example of a ready wit and scintillating, though superficial, intellect prostituted to the base use of mere money getting. We say this, though The Fra himself would admit with a grin, that we are only advertising him.

In his last issue, Paul Jones is introduced into a situation in which he plays no other part, save to exclaim: "G— D— Your Souls to H—, we have not yet begun fighting."

A hangman is made to explain that he "Jerked 'em to J—." Adam and Eve are engaged in a suggestive dialogue, and three reputable professions are dragged in the mire of abuse.

Nearly every lodge has its relater of nasty jokes, about which we like to snicker guiltily, like the boy who has stolen apples and gotten away with them. Elbert Hubbard has discovered this very human trait, and is willing to be the "dirty story teller" to the public; just as the Saturday Evening Post has become the "Nickel Library" of the grown-ups.

Those, who protest that Elbert Hubbard lays bare some very telling truths once in awhile, must admit their willingness to crawl around in a lot of filth to find a few grains of truth, that are better and more wholesomely expressed elsewhere.

CHAUTAUQUA FEATURES

A feature which bids fair to be one of the most interesting and inspiring of the entire session will be the Union Service of the Cairo Men's Bible class and the big Bible class of the Broadway M. E. church Sunday morning, June 19, at 10:30 a. m.

The Cairo Men's class numbers nearly five hundred intensely enthusiastic members, and a large percentage of attendance is expected by special train. These men in Cairo are accounted one of the strongest influences for good in the entire community and their presence here should have a marked tonic effect on the activities of our own big class.

Some Stories Around the Town.

Monday's Cincinnati Enquirer contains the following interview with a Paducah man:

Spurred by the activity of the cities of the Upper Ohio Valley in securing choice and large portions of space in the Ohio Valley Exposition for next fall, the industrial interests of the Lower Ohio Valley are becoming diligent in the matter of perfecting plans for displays, and the prospects now are that there will be the keenest kind of competition between the two sections of the honor of making the most comprehensive as well as the largest display of industrial products and resources.

Captain S. A. Fowler, of Paducah, Ky., during his visit to the city in attendance on the inquiry into the building of a bridge across the Ohio river at Paducah, spent much time at the exposition headquarters and closed an agreement for a large amount of space to be utilized by the combined manufacturers and producers of the Paducah territory.

"We're coming to the exposition with everything that we have in a commercial way," said Mr. Fowler. "Our manufacturers are deeply interested in the matter of bringing their wares to the attention of this section and of the south, and promise to have a display that will add much to the excellent reputation which Paducah already enjoys as a town of hunters. Our tobacco men are now engaged in arranging a display that will be unique and attractive, and will make the warehousemen and growers of other sections spend some sleepless night in an effort to equal. Paducah also is famous for the excellence of the brands of whiskeys that she produces, and there will be a complete line of 'wet goods' from our city shown at the exposition. Our general manufacturers also will be largely represented; and to further put Paducah on the map we expect to bring a while train load of enthusiastic citizens to the exposition on 'Paducah Day.' We're reading a lot about what the Upper Ohio Valley is going to do, but it will be no more than we at the lower end of the river will show when the time comes for making the real industrial display."

The Cairo Bulletin says:

Patrick Kearney, better known as "Punch," died yesterday morning shortly after midnight at the Marine hospital. He was an old riverman, having acted in the capacity of steward on several steamboats touching at Cairo on both the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, for over forty years. He was about 70 years of age.

cillation where there are fundamental differences.

The so-called "return from Elba" was a far-fetched historical metaphor and, as is said of the nebulous refrain of Poe's raven, "little meaning little relevancy bore." Mr. Roosevelt was not overthrown or exiled. He left the country in the hands of his political friends and his chosen successor. There is no throne to be resumed, no destroyed empire to be re-established. This great republic has not reached the condition where it depends on any one man to regulate its affairs. No one can ever be to the United States what Porfirio Diaz has been to Mexico. Mr. Roosevelt is yet comparatively young and he will necessarily be an active factor in public life in some form, but he has risen to no such pinnacle of greatness that the country turns to him for direction and guidance and that his absence for a few months has created any great necessity for his return.

It will be interesting to note how the former president will align himself with respect to the factions that have sprung up in the party. His proposed lecture tour over the country will attract great interest, but he is only a private American citizen living at a time when the country is enjoying a remarkable era of peace and prosperity and there would be no occasion for the exercise of very extraordinary services if such services were needed and he was really capable of bringing order out of chaos and otherwise establishing the generally desired conditions which some of his admirers seem to think lies in his power.—Nashville Banner.

Goodson, of Dixon, and Miss Mabel McNichols, the attractive bride-elect. Receiving cards at the door were little Misses Lena Utterback and Barbara Nell Paxton.

In the library, most appropriately described as the Arbor of Dorothy Perkins roses, with occasional beautifully arranged beds of sweet peas stood the receiving line. The cluster of lights suspended from the ceiling of this lovely bower was decorated with sprays of pink roses, baby's breath and graceful bows of tulle. Receiving with Mrs. Barbee and Miss Willie Mai Rascoe were: Miss Mabel McNichols, Mrs. J. A. Goodson, Mrs. J. T. McNichols, Mrs. Marvin Wright, of Mayfield; Mrs. Roy McNichols, Miss Willie Carr, of Mayfield; Mrs. Cornelia McNichols, Mrs. J. J. Sherrill, of Chicago; Miss Vickiida Nowell, Miss Elizabeth Sinner, and Mrs. Victor Voris.

The dining room was decorated with sweet peas in the pastel shades and asparagus ferns and lighted by a big dome very artistically decorated with sprays of sweet peas, ferns and baby's breath, tied with fluffy bows of white tulle. On the round dining table covered with cluny lace over pink was a big French basket of sweet peas, around which were wound vines of the asparagus fern. Near the outer edge of the table were lighted candles in the crystal candlesticks with pink shades and hanging on the edge of the table were sweet peas of all the dainty shades and tied with the bows of pink tulle.

In the refreshments the pastel shades were still prominent. The white ices were molded in the shape of brides' slippers and loving cups and the cakes iced in white and with a bouquet of sweet peas in the pastel shades. The mints also carried out this idea. Serving in this pretty room were Misses Nell Shaw, Sarah Rogers, Elizabeth Kirkland, Fred Paxton, Nella Hatfield, Helen Hills and Mrs. J. K. Ferguson.

A string band played while the gracious hostesses received numbers of their friends.

Home Course In Live Stock Farming

XVI.—Feeding Beef Cattle.

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture," "Making Money on the Farm," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

THERE are two general methods of making beef. The first consists in crowding the calves from birth until they are about eighteen months of age, when they are marketed as baby beef. The other method is to buy up young stuff, feed it for a few months and sell it for what it will bring. The bulk of these feeders is bought in the fall as two-year-olds and fed through the winter. Some are bought as yearlings and kept a year on rough feed and pasture before they are put into the feed-lot.

Baby Beef.

With the lessening size of the ranges and consequent smaller supply of western feeders, it is becoming more necessary for the farmer to raise his own cattle. Where this is done it will usually be most profitable to sell them as baby beef, thus avoiding the expense of keeping them until three years old. Good dual purpose cows are usually used to produce baby beef animals, since it is too often a losing proposition to keep a cow a year for the calf alone. Where the calves are being raised for breeding purposes and sell for a substantial advance over market prices they may be allowed to run with their mothers and live on new milk. This is too expensive a feed for beef calves, however. As soon as the calf is a week old it should be gradually changed from whole to skim milk, according to the plan given in article 8. As soon as possible the calves should be taught to eat shelled corn, with perhaps a few oats mixed with it. With clover or alfalfa for roughage, shelled corn alone does very well. The calves should be given all the rough feed they will eat, as by developing a large capacity when young greater gains can be obtained later.

From the standpoint of milk production it is best to have the calves come in the fall, but if cheap gains in the calves is the main point sought spring calving is preferable. In this way the calves will have to be kept through but one winter, and two summers of cheap gains on grass can be obtained. If the calves come in the spring they should be turned on grass as soon as possible. A shady pasture, with an occasional spraying for flies when they are bad, will add to the gains. Some grain should be fed all summer, the amount being controlled largely by the price. Heavy grain feeding increases the rate of gain, but adds to the cost. Grain feeding should continue throughout the winter, with the addition of plenty of clover or alfalfa hay and a little silage or roots, if such feed can be had.

One of the best ways to feed to corn at this time is to snap it and run it through a slicer. There is a freshness about snapped corn that makes the cattle relish it a great deal more than they do corn that has been husked. The feeding value of the husks amounts to considerable too. A little oil or cottonseed meal added to the ration will cheapen the cost of gain if corn is high in price. The most rapid gains are made where alfalfa or clover forms the only roughage, fed at the rate of about three pounds of hay to one of corn. Adding a little cheaper roughage reduces the cost of gain, however. Part of the clover may be replaced to advantage by silage.

The feed given should be liberal, as calves tend to grow rather than to fatten. This tendency is especially evident in calves of "scrub" ancestry. The feeder should endeavor to make them grow and fatten at the same time, never losing the "calf fat." During the early part of the second summer, while the grass is at its best, the grain feeding may slacken somewhat, but should be increased again after a month or so until the calves are getting all they will clean up. The proper time to market will depend largely upon the price and the finish of the cattle. A little extra finish adds considerably to the price.

In experiments that have been carried on to determine the relative cost of gains it has been found that gains can be put on yearlings from 25 to 30 per cent cheaper than on two-year-olds. Objection is sometimes made to baby beef raising on the ground that the cheap roughage, such as cornstalks and straw, cannot be disposed of in this way. This is true, but the cows will use a large part of this feed, and the rest can be turned into bedding and used to swell the size of the manure pile. There are some advantages in feeding older cattle, however. They gain faster and more uniformly and put on a better finish.

Feeding Older Cattle.

Where two-year-olds are to be fed they must usually be purchased. Occasionally a few can be picked up in the neighborhood, but if any number are wanted they will have to be bought on the general market. In order to make a profit in feeding there must be a margin between the cost of feeders and the selling price of fat animals. If the fat steer sells for $1 a hundred, weight more than he was bought for, each hundred pounds of his original weight has been increased in value $1. It is in this way that most of the profit in feeding is obtained.

Buying feeding cattle right is one of the most important factors to success in the cattle business. Large cattle can be safely purchased on a narrower margin than lighter ones, since there is more weight to be increased in value. For instance, a margin of $1 on a 700 pound steer would mean an increase in value of $7. On a 1,200 pound steer the margin would need to be only 60 cents to produce the same amount. Another general principle is that the lower the price at which the feeders are bought the greater must be the margin. Of course the margin in any case can be only estimated, since the selling price cannot be foretold to a certainty in advance.

In selecting feeder steers there are a number of points to be kept in mind. One of the most important of these is uniformity. A bunch of steers that are uniform as to size and quality will feed better together and bring a better price when fattened. The feeders should come as near the beef type as possible—short face and neck, deep body, well sprung ribs, broad back, straight top and under line, long rump, fairly short legs. The steer with a sway back or flat ribs should be avoided. A sway back will never become a wide one. Since this is where the highest priced meat is found, this point will be an important one. In addition to this, the steers should have good constitution and large digestive capacity without being paunchy. Too large a paunch lessens the percentage of dressed beef that the animal will kill out, while a steer that is "tucked up" in the flank will never make good gains. If any of the cattle have horns they should be disbursed at once after getting them home.

The usual method of getting cattle on feed is to hurry the process as much as possible, getting them on full feed within fifteen to thirty days from the time they were first put into the feed lot. Where the cattle are to be on feed but a short time, say ninety days, it is undoubtedly the best method. It is not economical, however. Larger amounts of grain will be used with less roughage. The gains grow smaller toward the end of the feeding period, as the cattle begin to tire of the heavy rations. Where this plan is followed the safest plan is to chaff the hay with a feed cutter and mix the grain with it. Some oilmeal should be used to balance the corn.

A more profitable plan usually is to start in more slowly, taking as long as sixty days to get the cattle on full feed. The main feed during this preliminary period and much of the later period as well may be snapped corn. Considerable silage may be fed to advantage during the first part of the feeding period. If fed silage during the finishing period they will not smooth up as well, ship as well or sell as well.

This plan of using a lighter grain ration and a longer feeding period produces cheaper gains down to a certain point. By the end of sixty days the cattle should be on full feed and should receive nearly all they will clean up from that time on. They are in better shape to stand crowding than if they had been pushed from the start and will continue to make satisfactory gains up to the end of the feeding period. Some oil or cottonseed meal should be given during the last thirty days, as it not only cheapens the cost of gains, but also adds to the finish. Where there are hogs following cattle, grinding feed will seldom pay, with the possible exception of the last two or three weeks.

Experiments in feeding for a long period compared as to profits with feeding for a short period have shown that if roughage be relatively more plentiful and cheaper than meat then the "long feed" is the more profitable.

but where meat is plentiful and roughage scarce then the "short feed" is likely to be more profitable.

Experiments in feeding lots of an inferior class of steer in comparison with lots of a medium class of steer and lots of a superior class of steer go to show that the superior class give greater returns for feed fed, make greater gains in a given time and sell for a higher price than do the inferior class.

Feeding steers twice a day rather than more frequently has been found advisable. Feeding a succulent ration has been found to be cheaper and more wholesome than an all dry feed ration. Mixing roughage and meat seems to give better results than feeding them separately.

SHOT AT SELF; MISSED.

Texas Burns Hair Off Head With Shot—No Blood Shed.

Waco, Tex., June 15.—P. C. Hall, a carpenter, who became despondent, tried to end his life today by the pistol route.

He snapped the revolver four times and when finally it did go off it buried most of the hair from the top of his head, but brought no blood. Interference put a stop to his abortive efforts to end life.

PLANS BIG CAPITAL

HASKELL WILL NAME THE CAPITAL COMMISSION SOON.

Will Take Up Duties Incident to Installing New Capitol.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 15.—Governor Haskell may, within the next 48 hours, name the three members of the state capital commission, two of whom will be Democrats and the third a Republican.

Conference with the governor today has been largely in the interest of the personnel of the commission, but the governor refrains from indicating his choice.

Those most familiar with the situation declare that the governor has favored Boone Williams, of Lehigh, as Democratic member and Clarence Douglass, of Muskogee, or Judge J. T. Decker, of Chickasha, as the representative member. It is practically certain that Williams will be named.

Some of the Republican aspirants for the other place are Judge John G. Carney, of El Reno, judge of the district court; Judge J. B. A. Robertson, of Chandler, Democratic candidate for governor; Thomas Smith, of Muskogee; Dr. A. S. Riddle, of Chickasha, former member of the legislature; Tate Brady, of Tulsa, Democratic national committeeman, and others.

The commissioners are to receive $6,000 each salary.

Each takes the same oath of office as a state officer. The commission is a formally accepted one of the options of land submitted, provide for the platting and sale of part of the land, employ attorneys, architects and clerical help, and, finally, with the approval of the governor and legislature, contract for the erection of the state capitol.

The commission has an appropriation of $500,000 for immediate use, and the law contemplates the erection of a capitol from the proceeds of the lot sale.

Probably a capitol costing $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 will be erected without cost to the taxpayers under this system.

MILLION IN TAXES.

Corporations Have Come in With Heavy Payments.

Washington, June 15.—More than a million dollars has been paid into the treasury on account of the corporation tax. Receipts for June have aggregated $342,624. Twenty-seven million dollars in assessments have been levied against the corporations of the country under the corporation tax law. The tax is payable on or before June 30. Most of the corporations whose assessments run into the hundreds of thousands will wait, in all probability, until the last moment before paying up, thus utilizing in other directions the tax money.

Answer By the Last Boy.

The inspector was examining Standard I and all the class has been specially told beforehand by their master, says the Dundee Advertiser. "Don't answer unless you are almost certain your answer is correct."

History was the subject. "Now, tell me," said the inspector, "who was the mother of our great Scottish hero, Robert Bruce?" He pointed to the top boy, then round the class. There was no answer. Then at last the heart of the teacher of that class leaped with joy. The boy who was standing at the very foot had held up his head. "Well, my boy," said the inspector, encouragingly, "who was she?" "Please, sir, Mrs. Bruce."

Nature's Hair Restorer

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

One Great Reason Why

This Great Hair Beautifier and Color Restorer Produces Such Remarkable Results

Sulphur is a Natural Element of the Hair

When there is not a sufficient amount of sulphur in the hair, it loses its life, color and strength, turns gray, and falls out. There are many forms of sulphur, but only one kind that is suitable for treatment of the hair and scalp, and that is the kind used in preparing WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY.

We Have the Secret, and We Give You the Benefit of It at an Exceedingly Low Price

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair, and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

"GO SOUTH YOUNG MEN"

EXODUS TO BRITISH NORTH-WEST DEPLORED.

Louisiana Congressman Sounds Ringing Note for Opportunity Afforded in South.

POPULARIZE THE FARM LIFE.

Washington, June 15.—With "Go South, young men and immigrants," as his keynote, Representative Ransdell, of Louisiana, addressed the house, as a sort of advance agent for the southland in general and Louisiana in particular.

He based his remarks on the exodus of many of "our best citizens" into the British possessions north of the United States, and the rapid congestion of our cities, caused by the growing unpopularity of life on the farm, and by the large influx of foreign immigrants, many of whom settle in cities. As a remedy for all those problems, he suggested to the house that the persons concerned should be induced to come to the south.

"In my judgment," said the Louisiana statesman, in discussing the drift of people from the farms to the cities, "this is one of the fruitful causes of the high price of living. All food products—and the food we eat is our heaviest item of expense—comes from the ground or the sea, and when the number of consumers who dwell in cities disproportionately exceeds the producers in the country, it naturally results in high prices.

Living Growing Higher.
"If the relative growth of population in city and country remains the same for the next decade, and production of food be not materially increased in some very unlooked for way, I see no reason why the price of edibles should decrease, but rather expect an increase," he predicted.

In this connection Representative Ransdell said that "what is happening to us is also happening to the nations of Europe."
He also showed that during the last five years 312,614 citizens, carrying with them material wealth in money and property, valued at over $312,000,000, "to say nothing of these splendid people," emigrated from the United States into Canada. He commented at length upon the concentration of aliens in the cities of the United States.

"The southern states would gladly furnish homes to every one of our own citizens," said he, "who have gone to Canada or contemplated such a move, and would welcome all the boys and girls who have left or expect to leave the hardships of northern farms to seek unfamiliar work in congested cities. Moreover, we can supply farms to a great many of the foreigners who seek our shores, and we are really anxious to receive all good immigrants of the Teutonic, Scandinavian, British and French races."

Then he entered into a description of what the south offered.

A few years ago, he remarked, the southerners were nearly all farmers and the one crop was cotton. "Its scepter was seized some time ago by King Corn and is now firmly held by that monarch," he added.

But corn and cotton are not the only crops grown in the south. Mr. Ransdell gave the house to understand that had come over it and the present practice of diversification of crops.

South's Diversity.
With this diversity of crops, the congressman painted the south as a fine place for domestic animals. He grew real enthusiastic over the advantages of "my own Louisiana for the lowly worker."

The farms were not the only things the south had to offer. Mr. Ransdell informed the house. He suggested that an inspection of mining, mercantile and manufacturing statistics would show that.

He challenged the statements that the south was not a healthy section. The whites, he said, were just as healthy as whites in any other portion of the country. "The negro race is not healthy," he admitted, "for reasons which the scope of this speech prevents me from discussing."

Speaking of the negroes, the congressman had something interesting to say about the race question.

"Some one asked about the race question in the south," said Mr. Ransdell, "whether the Caucasian and the negro could dwell together in harmony I unhesitatingly answer that they can and do live in the most perfect amity, each race pursuing its own methods and working out its own destiny in friendly co-operation and competition, but without social commingling.

Race Problem Solving.

"The negro question is settling itself and under the guidance of a wise Providence the negroes not only of the south, but throughout the entire union, are destined to fill their places and do their part in kindly friendship with their white brethren. In many localities of the south there are very few negroes, and prospective immigrants can regulate this question entirely by settling in colonies, a plan which has very much to recommend it.

"But even without colonies there is nothing in the negro question to cause trouble. As a matter of fact, there are innumerable white farmers scattered throughout the south, and it goes without saying that the majority of the people in cities and in business pursuits are whites."

Flowers was walking with his bicycle near the station when he stumbled and fell, the wheel falling on his wrist and fracturing the bone. He was resting easy today at his home, 1420 South Fourteenth street.

E. H. Morris and G. B. Davis, carmen, left this morning for Central City to work for several days.

POSTAL DECLINES TO SERVE BUCKET SHOPS.

Nashville, Tenn., June 15.—Mr. Edward J. Nally, vice-president and general manager of the Postal Telegraph Cable company, upon being shown a statement that inquiry might be made as to whether the Postal company was leasing wires to bucket shops, for which the Western Union Telegraph company has recently been indicted, said: "That is a class of business which the Postal Telegraph company has always kept out of. It is a very lucrative branch of the telegraph business, the profits running into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, but it is not the kind of business which we engage in. Only a short time ago, we again went over all our numerous wire leases to ascertain whether any of them might possibly be for bucket shop purposes. We found one which was doubtful and thereupon gave the usual 30 days' notice of cancellation, as allowed by the contract and that lease has been cancelled. I am confident that none of the wires of the Postal Telegraph Cable company are used for bucket shop purposes."

TWO NEW ROADS

APPLICATIONS ARE GRANTED BY JUDGE BARKLEY.

Magruder Road and Another One Near Lamont, Connecting Highways.

Two new public county roads have been granted by County Judge A. W. Barkley. The application for a public road to be known as the Magruder road, running from the Clark's line road north to the Woodville road was granted, as was the new road near Lamont, connecting with the Metropolis and Mayfield road. In the suit of H. A. Dillworth against Mrs. Mallie Miles for the opening of a public road across her property the road was not granted. Judge Barkley decided that the road would not be of benefit to the public and refused it on that reason.

Jailer Wants Hot Water.
Since the weather has become too warm for steam heat, which has been shut off, City Jailer James Clark is up a stump. As a relief to his worries he will ask the finance committee of the general council to purchase a tank with a burner underneath in order to heat water for disinfecting purposes. He says a tank will cost only a small sum, and is necessary. Steam is used during the winter in scouring the cells and is much cheaper than disinfectant powders, he claims. Since the steam heat has been discontinued there has been nothing but cold water on hand.

STATUE OF CLAY WILL BE DEDICATED AT LIBRARY.

Dr. Murrell Performs Feat of Surgery in Restoring Fingers to Figure.

July 4 has been arranged as the date for the dedication of a handsome statue of Henry Clay, which will be placed in the public library. A program for the dedication will be arranged, but it is announced that Hon. E. W. Bagby, president of the library board of trustees, will deliver the oration. The statue of Clay is carved from wood and is the work of the late George Theobald, a wood carver of ability. The figure is carved from a cypress log, and shows the great Kentuckian in a characteristic pose. It is a splendid piece of work, and the features are brought out clearly, and those who have seen it pronounce it equal to the stone statues made by great sculptors.

The statue was resurrected from a stable left by Dr. D. G. Murrell, and he spent several weeks repairing the figure as several fingers and minor parts had been broken, and it was necessary to replace them. Dr. Murrell is experienced in wood carving, and his work is equally as good as the original. The statue is being painted white, and will be dedicated and placed in the public library with appropriate ceremonies.

AT THE THEATRES

A Girl at the Kentucky Fools' Italian.

For an English girl to do an Italian impersonation which sometimes fools Italians is a distinction that few can claim. But Miss Franc Kelcey, of the Three Kelcey Sisters at the Kentucky has done this and has two interesting bits of evidence to prove it.

One is a "mash" note written in Italian by a young man in Fort Dodge, Iowa, who was sure after seeing Miss Kelcey's impersonation, that she was one of his compatriots. The note asks the privilege of meeting her and conversing in the native tongue. Miss Kelcey speaks some Italian during her impersonation, but not sufficient to carry on a conversation, and she had hard work to convince the Italian that she was not an Italian but part English and part French.

The other piece of evidence is a beautiful jade pin, the shape of a turtle and as big as a silver dollar. This was given her in Chicago, by a man who sent his daughter with an invitation to call on the family and bearing the present. Jackson, Tenn., June 15.—The barn of Levi Smith, a farmer, residing near Ferry's Switch, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning at daybreak. Smith was awakened by the barking of his dogs, but thought it was someone passing, and did not get up. Thirty minutes later he was awakened by the noise of the crackling flames of the burning building. He got out too late to save his stock, a $200 horse and a fine pair of mules being burned to death. In addition he lost all his farming machinery and implements with the exception of a few plows, which had been left in the field over Sunday, about 40 barrel of corn and 50 tons of clover hay and all his smoked meats, which, with a barrel of flour, destroyed also, he had stored in the barn. TRY DIVORCE CASE SIX TIMES.

Couple Separated After Living Stormily Together 30 Years.

Cookeville, Tenn., June 15.—The trial of one of the most sensational and unusual divorce suits ever heard in this county was concluded in the chancery court yesterday before Special Chancellor A. H. Roberts, of Lexington. The parties were W. E. Sliger and his wife. They own a good farm and enjoy the respect and esteem of all who know them. Both have large and influential family connections. They were married 31 years ago and have had 10 children, eight of whom are living, the youngest being a 7-year-old girl. From the proof it was very evident that the greater portion of their married life had been a most tempestuous one. Both were extremely industrious and frugal. Neither ever suspected the other of an act of infidelity, but both are possessed of ungovernable tempers, which they have indulged to the limit. In the past Mrs. Sliger has four times instituted divorce proceedings against her husband, while he has twice before taken the preliminary steps to secure a divorce, but in each of the six instances reconciliations were effected and the bills withdrawn. This time the husband sued and was granted a divorce. The property was ordered divided.

Have you paid your city taxes yet? The penalty goes on soon, you know, and you might overlook this matter. It would be best to look after this today.

To Modernize Your Kitchen Means to

COOK WITH GAS

It Means Convenience, Comfort and Economy

YOUR neighbors cook with gas, why shouldn't you? Your neighbors have cool kitchens, and cook economically. They turn on their gas, and touch a match, they turn off their gas when through using, they have no kindling or coal to bother with and don't have to keep a fire going constantly. You can have all these conveniences just as well as your neighbor, so why don't you?

May be you are doubtful as to some of the statements we make. We are ready to back them up and will be glad for an opportunity to talk with you to convince you that YOU SHOULD USE GAS.

If you are off our gas mains let us hear from you any way, for we are willing to make profitable extensions and maybe we could reach you. Talk "Gas" to your neighbors and we'll try to get them interested, too.

OUR COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT has been organized to look after the wants of our customers. We will be glad to give you any information you may desire as regards gas for cooking purposes. Call us by telephone and we will send a representative to see you. But remember, to be modern you should cook with gas.
